We're looking for a passionate and meticulous graduate to join Lizzie Crocker, a consultancy specialising in end-to-end product development for homeware and interior brands. Our mission is to help brands create unique, authentic collections that reflect their aesthetic, ensuring quality and innovative designs.

In this role, you will be crucial in helping developing homeware products from concept to launch. You'll work closely with Lizzie, our founder, and various sourcing agents and suppliers to develop samples that align with our clients' brand values and production quality standards.

The ideal candidate will have a keen eye for detail, exceptional organisational skills, and a strong commitment to accuracy, especially when handling product information and documentation. A passion for interiors and homewares isn't essential but preferred. The candidate will need a creative eye and able to create mood boards, following design briefs, be forward thinking in ideas, able to use adobe suite for creating product tech sheets and confident in excel in handling numbers.

You'll be excited to be a key part of our growing team, ready to contribute and embrace the values that Lizzie Crocker stands for.

Your responsibilities will include:

- * Sourcing and liaising with local and international suppliers to develop samples and ensure quality production.
- * Compiling reference images to effectively brief and instruct suppliers.
- * Analysing market trends, competitor products, and their specifications.
- * Creating detailed product specification sheets for new and existing products, including materials, finishes, dimensions, and other technical information.
- * Researching new manufacturers to expand our product offerings.
- * Participating in the sample review process to ensure products and packaging meet technical specifications.
- * Using Adobe Suite to generate technical drawings based on creative direction.
- * Interest in working on brand socials is a bonus but not essential.

Please note this is a graduate job so the candidate doesn't need to have experience in the above however it is important that they feel they could with Lizzie's help work on the above responsibilities. Lizzie is based in Peckham SE London and it would be a hybrid role on Peckham and WFH.
